HISTORICAL COMMENTS

Toronto, March 7th, 1914.

To The Editor Napanee Express :

Sir :—I read with interest the historical note in this week's paper, re the old Lutheran Church at Ernestown. The writer, speaking of the first Lutheran missionary says : "Just when he came (to Ernestown) is not easy to determine. He went to Dundas in 1808."

Perhaps some little accounts of this missionary, I. G. Wigant, or Weant, or Weagant, as the name is variously spelled, may be of interest to your readers. I have to rely upon a somewhat treacherous memory, but the following particulars are, I think, substantially correct.

Mr. Weagant was the minister to the "Mohawk Dutchmen" settled in the Townships of Williamsburgh and Osnabrook early in the last century. These people we so-called from their having come over from the Mohawk Valley in New York, with other United Empire Loyalists. Our good Mohawks of the Tyendinaga Reserve, or their forefathers, must have been their near neighbors.

From 1875 to 1884 I was successively missionary at Osnabrook and Rector of Williamsburg, and remember very well seeing Mr. Weagant's signature to long lists of baptisms, marriages and deaths in the parish register of both parishes. I was engaged in the arduous task of making out an index of these books, and have reason therefore to remember them.

Mr. Weagant not long after he came to the settlement had occasion to change his views on the subject of church government, and was ordained to the ministry of the Church of England by Bishop Mountain, of Quebec. His whole congregation came over with him. In the time of his successor, I believe, owing to some misunderstanding, about half of the Williamsburgh congregation renounced their connection with the Church of England and established a Lutheran Mission and built a church near by. A handsome brick building is still standing there, whether the original structure or not. I cannot say, I rather fancy however, it is of more recent date.

The old Anglican church at Williamsburgh was in use in my day ; it has been replaced recently by a beautiful stone church, (but not on the old foundation) chiefly through the munificence of the Chrysler family. It is close to, if not actually upon, the battle field of Chrysler's Farm and near the home and birthplace of the present Premier of Ontario, Sir James Whitney. The handsome memorial of the battle is not far off. All can be seen from the carriage window as one is swept by in the "International Limited."

In the old church there was a mural tablet to the memory of the Rev. John G. Weagant, who was described as a graduate of Gottenburg, or some other German University. I presume this memorial has been transferred to the new church. Mr. Weagant is buried in the old church yard and many of

The only Jury case on the docket was Guardian Trust Co., administrators of the estate of Orista Battista the Dominion Construction Co damages claiming $6000 on account of the said Orista Battista being on a gravel train along the line of Campbellford, Lake Ontario Western Railway, but on account of the absence of material witnesses the case was postponed to Cobourg.

Shipman vs. Phin—An action brought by R. B. Shipman against V. E. Phin, of Hamilton, to recover $3000 damages for loss sustained reason of the mud scow of defendant colliding with the Schooner W. Wing, the property of the plaintiff. The defendant counterclaimed $2000 for damages to his mud scow. After a number of witnesses on both sides were examined His Lordship dismissed the plaintiff's action on costs and dismissed the defendant's counterclaim without costs. Herrington, K.C., and John Elphinstone for plaintiff, Mr. Burbridge, Hamilton for defendant.

Maracle vs. Whittington—This action brought by Chas. D. Maracle in trust for Lawrence Wm. Maan an infant, and was to have it declared that his $600 mortgage on the yard plant was a lien upon the said brickyard now owned by Napanee Brick and Tile Co. Judgment as follows : Declaration that plaintiff's mortgage for $600 interest is to be a charge on the mortgage made by Madill, held by the defendant upon the lands in question the pleadings and to be paid the defendant and that the defendant pay plaintiff cost of action. If the defendant chooses to pay at once the judgment may be in that form. Herri Warner & Grange for plaintiff his descendants are living in the citizens. Had I known during my stay in Napanee that Mr. Weagant had been a resident of the Bay of more authentic details of his history.

Awarded "First Position" at the World's Greatest Automobile Show

THE extraordinary supremacy of the 1914
Overland has been officially recognized by the Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Because the Willys-Overland Company did a greater volume of business during 1913 than any other firm in this organization, it was awarded the position of honor at the great National 1914 Automobile Show in the Grand Central Palace, New York City.

Do you know that the 1914 Overland is today the most sought after car of its type in the entire civilized world?

Even in Detroit, the automobile hub of the world, there are more Overlands being sold than any other car of this type.

The Overland has made, established and won for Toledo with its individual plans alone, the title of the second greatest automobile city in the world.

Has it ever occurred to you that there must be some substantial reason for such unparalleled success? There is, and here it is.

No other factory in the world can build a car the equal of the 1914 Overland for less than $1500.

Our price—$1250.

The motor is larger—but the price is lower.

The wheelbase is longer—but the price is shorter.

The tires are larger—but the price is lower

The new car has electric lights throughout —even under the dash—but the price is lower.

It is magnificently finished in dark Brewster green, with running boards and wheels to match, trimmed in polished nickel and aluminum—but the price is lower.

Then there is a larger tonneau, a jeweled
Stewart Speedometer—a larger steering wheel, and deeper upholstery—but the price is lower.

Period of Six Years.

LONDON, March 10.—The House of Commons was packed yesterday afternoon, and the Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. Herbert Henry Asquith, loudly cheered on rising to state upon the Irish situation the second reading of the Rule bill.

The Premier, after reviewing unsuccessful efforts to arrive at a compromise with their political opponents by a series of conferences, said they had then come to the final question as to how far concession could be adopted without giving the principles of either side. They had come to the conclusion that the only way was to allow the counties themselves to decide where they desired to be excluded.

His plan was that any county in the Province of Ulster was to be excluded for a certain period if a poll being taken of the Parliamentary electors of any county before the coming into operation of a bare majority of votes favored exclusion. The poll would be taken in the case of a requisition were presented by one-tenth of the electors of a county, within a certain time after the date of the passing of the bill. Persons entitled to vote were entitled to vote at Parliamentary elections, and the question would be: "Are you for the exclusion of the county from the Government of Ireland for a period of years against such exclusion?" The poll would be taken by ballot, and by Parliamentary elections. The poll resulted in favor of exclusion of the county would be automatically excluded for a prescribed period.

In speaking of a "count" would include as separate the Boroughs of Belfast and Londonderry. He did not believe the select a more practicable area county. The Government, after consideration, thought that the idea of exclusion should be set aside from the first meeting of the Legislature in Dublin.

He had endeavored, he said, to explain the proposals which were forward as the price of (Cheers.) No one, he believed, in Ireland or here, had any real exclusion for its own sake or its own merits. He did not expect proposals which he had outlined to be received with enthusiasm, but he did ask for the liberate and dispassionate consideration. (Cheers.) "No Home Irish or British, they involved at least a postponement of a complete and symmetrical system of self-government. To Unionists they were a necessary acceptance of a Legislature and executive in Ireland. On the other hand, they would put out for the home rulers the prospect of an undivided Ireland brought to its full measure of development, as he might hope and believe, not by coercion but by consent to Ulstermen they offered an absolutely free choice, with the

TRIBUTES TO ROSS.

Legislature Adjourns After Expressions of Respect to His Memory.

TORONTO, March 10.—Out of deference to the memory of the late Sir George W. Ross, the Ontario Legislature adjourned yesterday, but not before the leaders of both parties had united in tributes to the former Premier of the province.

"No man gave more of his life and talents to the public work that he had in hand," said Acting Premier Foy. "He was a man of remarkable ability, a strong debater, and in command of great eloquence. The country has lost a big man, a man free from pettiness and narrowness. All mourn his passing and give their sympathy to his sorrowing relatives. It is a fitting that this House mark its respect to Sir George."

The legislation which found its rise in the time of the Ross administration was outlined by Mr. Rowell. Among the things which his administration had brought, either in realization or in suggestion, were the systems of kindergarten training and the federation of the provincial universities. The development of the north country had its start in his regime.

Hon. Dr. Pyne, T. Marshall of Monck, and A. E. Donovan added words of tribute.

ATHLETIC CLUB BURNS

From Thirty to Thirty-Five May Have Perished in Fire.

St. Louis, Mo., Is Scene of Terrible
Tragedy When Flames Destroy a Seven-Storey Building and Guests
Lose Their Lives — Seven Bodies
Have Already Been Recovered
—23 to 29 Are Unaccounted For.

ST. LOUIS, March 10.—That from thirty to thirty-five guests of the Missouri Athletic Club perished in the flames that destroyed the building yesterday morning is the belief of officers of the club.

Seven bodies have been recovered, and from 23 to 29 occupants of the structure are still unaccounted for.
At sundown last night, firemen continued the search for bodies in the smouldering ruins under the glare of searchlights.

The blaze was the fourth serious
fire in the downtown district of St.
Louis in eight days, and the most serious as to fatalities of any fire in the city's history. This fire completely wrecked the seven-storey building occupied jointly by the Missouri Athletic Club and by the Boatmen's Bank, caused a property loss estimated at half a million dollars, and by destroying the list of entries and other club records, forced the abandonment of the intercollegiate track meet that was to have been held in St.
Louis under the auspices of the club
next Saturday night.

The cause of the fire still was a mystery last night.

The number of guests who had rooms in the clubhouse, either permanently or for the night, was about 100. Many of these escaped, some checked out before the fire; others, it is thought, were not there when the flames broke out, some were injured in leaving the clubhouse, and the rest are listed among the dead or unaccounted for.

Dramatic escapes were numerous.
One of the most spectacular was that of twelve or thirteen men who descended from a fifth floor window to the roof of an adjoining four-storey building by means of an improvised rope made out of two sheets. One guest escaped by leaping over a chasm 10 feet wide to the roof of an adjoining building.

Fall of New Mexico Urges an Armed

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The lid of secrecy regarding Mexico was lifted in the Senate yesterday by Senator Fall, Republican, of New Mexico, who urged armed intervention for the protection of Americans and other foreigners in the stricken republic. The galleries were crowded to overflowing.

Senator Shively of Indiana, who,
as acting chairman of the committee on foreign relations, spoke for the Administration, expressed regret that the subject had been discussed in open session, avowing that no adequate suggestion had been offered to compose the difficulty.

Senator Fall's policy, he said, would mean actual armed intervention, and that intervention meant war.

Senator Sheppard of Texas declared the majority of the people of his state were in hearty accord with

Plumage Traffic a Dishonor Says the British Postmaster-General.

LONDON, March 10.—Postmaster-General Hobbhouse, in moving the second reading of the plumage bill in the House of Commons last night gave details of London plumage sales and said that in June of 1913 plumage was sold representing about 77,000 aligrettes, 22,000 pigeons, 25-000 humming birds, and 162,000 kingfishers. They wished to put a stop to the traffic which was a dishonor to the people who conducted it.

It was proposed, subject to one or two exceptions, to prohibit the importation into the United Kingdom of the plumage of any wild birds, and to prevent any person having in his possession or being concerned in the sale of such plumage. Parliament, he urged, had a right to insist that a silly, debasing fashion should not be allowed to work harm to the most innocent and beautiful of God's creatures. It was a cure of the vanity of woman going hand in hand with the vanity of man, and he did not

Asquith said he now saw the value of an agreed settlement, in the balance of give and take likely to be more evenly adjusted.

Bonar Law, who followed Mr. Asquith, declared that the Unionists were unalterably opposed to Home Rule with or without exclusion. The Irish Nationalists, Mr. Asquith said that they did not object kindly to the concessions. Asquith would deem it their duty to leave the bill unchanged if the Opposition rejected the proposals of the Government.

Mr. O'Brien, speaking in behalf of the Independent Nationalists, said Mr. Asquith's concessions were useful and intolerable.

Miners' Wives Seek Pardon.

OTTAWA, March 10.—The proposition has been made in Toronto that the prison reform bodies elsewhere should transfer to the province the right of clemency as it affects in provincial institutions has been referred to the Justice Department. KILLED BY TRAIN.

Young Man Goes Under Gates at a Level Crossing.

TORONTO, March 10.—Stooping under the gates at the level Bloor street crossing of the C.P.R. and G.T.R. tracks about 10.30 yesterday morning, William J. Beaver, a young Irishman, 21 years of age, walked directly in front of an eastbound G.T.R. passenger train and was instantly killed.

The young fellow, who, with his brother James of 55 McCaul street, came to this country from Ireland but nine months ago, was an employee of the Canada Bread Company, whose works at Dundas and Bloor streets are close to the railway crossing. During the earlier part of the morning he obtained leave to go back to his boarding-house at 117 Perth avenue, for something he had forgotten, and it was on his return to work that he met his death.

GIRL IS MURDERED.

Toronto Jewess Shot by Lover Who Tries to Kill Himself.

TORONTO, March 10.—Crazed with jealousy, Isaac Estrean, a coat-maker, living at 383 Adelaide street west, discharged four shots from a revolver, at his sweetheart, Anna Carlock, 501 Adelaide street west, yesterday afternoon at two o'clock, almost instantly killing her. The shooting took place on Adelaide street west, opposite No. 412. After killing the girl, Estrean was pursued, and turning the revolver on himself put a bullet through his abdomen. He now lies at the General Hospital in a critical condition, with a policeman on guard at the door of his room. Late last evening it was reported that his condition was slightly improved.

Estrean was madly in love with the Jewish girl, who was about 22 years of age, but had repeatedly been rejected. On Sunday the girl received word from Russia that Estrean had a wife and family living there, and it is thought by the police that it was when she reproached him for his actions that he committed the deed.

Harry Carlock, the girl's brother, was the first to catch up to Estrean, and although wounded, Estrean fought with the brother as long as he Parliament, he urged, had a right to insist that a silly, debasing fashion should not be allowed to work harm to the most innocent and beautiful of God's creatures. COUNTY JUDGES CHOSEN.

Seven Are Promoted to Woolsack to Fill Vacancies.

OTTAWA, March 10.—Official announcement was made yesterday of the appointment of seven new Ontario county court judges. The new judges are Emmerson Coatsworth, Toronto, judge of York County; C. R. Hanning, of Preston, judge of Waterloo; Frank R. Powell, of Parry Sound, judge of Parry Sound district; H. R. Lavell, of Smith's Falls, judge of Frontenac; Arthur T. Boles, of Leamington, judge of Norfolk; John W. Elliott, of Milton, judge of Milton; and Col. John H. Scott, of Walkerton, judge of Lanark.

There are still two Ontario county court judgeships vacant, Northumberland and Durham, caused by the retirement of Judge Benson, and Renfrew, due to the death of Judge Donahue.

The other seven vacancies are due to the retirement of judges under a statute passed last session which provides for the retirement of all county court judges when they reach 75. The judges who retire on full pay are: Judge Senkler, of Lanark; Judge Price, of Frontenac; Judge Robb, of Norfolk; Judge Morgan, of York; Judge McCurdy, of Parry Sound; Judge Chisholm, of Waterloo, and Judge Benson, of Northumberland.

Texas Rangers Did Not Go Into Mexico After All.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The serious importance of the Vergara incident has been materially minimized by yesterday's reports that there was no invasion of Mexican territory by Texas Rangers to recover the body of the American rancher who was murdered by Mexican Federals. While the Government is still awaiting a complete official report of the affair, it is satisfied that Vergara's body was disinterred by friends and taken over the border into Texas, where it was recovered by Texas Rangers and others who had been notified that it would be found at a designated spot on Texas soil.

Aid Asked For Steel Industry.

OTTAWA, March 10.—J. W. Curran of The Daily Star, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Mayor Lyons, of Steelton, and Cyril Young, of North Bay, are here to interview the Government regarding assistance in the production of ore, in order to put the steel industry on its feet. In 1913, they state, that there was only one ton of Canadian ore used in Canadian blast furnaces out of every 22½ tons used. The reason the Government is asked to give aid is to help in the refracting of the cost of solving the low-grade ore proposition in Canada.

South African Bill Passed.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, March 10.—In the House of Assembly yesterday the bill to indemnify the Government for its acts under martial law passed the third reading by a vote of 70 to 12. Minister of the Interior Smutz, in moving the third reading of the bill, said the banishment recently of nine labor leaders because of their connection with the general strike was not necessarily permanent. The indemnity bill is an outgrowth of the deportation of these men, who are now in England.

Frenchwoman Is Champion "Pug."

PARIS, March 10.—Mlle. Carpentier, muscular, aged 25, was declared the world's champion woman pugilist, after a fast four-round encounter at Chantilly, with Mrs. Warner, wife of the English fighter, in the presence of a packed audience of society men and women. In the fourth, Mlle. Carpentier rallied, and with a stunning left to the jaw brought her rival to the boards. Thereupon Mrs. Warner's seconds threw up the sponge.

GOVERNMENT DIS- CREDITS OWN REPORT

Deliberate Misstatements in the Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton Report are Reluctantly Admitted by the Government Itself.

It may take some time for the real facts to overtake the widely circulated misrepresentations and apparently deliberate misstatements of the official slanderers of the National Transcontinental Railway and of the Laurier Government's connection therewith. But the facts in refutation are being gradually forced from a reluctant Government and are being made public in a series of official replies by the ministers to queries from Liberal members in Parliament. During the past week it has been made more plain than ever that the scandal-hunting investigators, aided and abetted by the Government, have overreached themselves. The main charges made by Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton were discredited almost as soon as their report was published, by reason of its obvious partisanship, its one-sided argument, and its deliberate misrepresentation of actual conditions in regard to construction of the road. During the past week in the Commons the Government has been compelled to explicitly state that its own commissioners were not telling the truth.

One of the main charges contained in the press report handed out by the Government was that the former Notional Transcontinental, commissioners had paid over to M. P. and J. T. Davis, some $70,000 as a "rake off" for their share of the profit on two large contracts sublet to O'Brien, Fowler and McDougall. It was deliberately stated that the National Transcontinental commission had held back 10 per cent of the monies due to the latter contractors, and had paid it over to the Messrs. Davis as clear profit, without the latter having turned a spade. In reply to a question by Hon. G. P. Graham in the Commons synopsised and partisan press report was made public. During the interval there has been no opportunity for Liberal members of Parliament to look into the facts on which the findings were based. Now that the evidence is down the unfounded character of the charges of the alleged $40,000,000 waste is more obvious than ever. In the whole volume of several hundred pages of evidence there is not a paragraph on which one specific charge of actual graft can be based. The investigating commissioners, in cases where there was any dispute as to matters of policy in regard to the standard of construction, have simply taken one side of the argument advanced wherever a change of plan was suggested with a view to cheapening the cost and lowering the standard of construction, and have ignored entirely the arguments advanced against the change of plan. Proceeding on this basis and ignoring the opinions given by the Grand Trunk Pacific engineers and by the chief engineers of the National Transcontinental commission and of the Railway Department, they have coolly added up every item that could possibly be counted in making up a total of $40,000,000 that might have been saved had a road of a lower standard of construction been built.

Finally it may be noted that the partisan misrepresentations contained in the report of Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton, and still more highly colored by the Conservative press throughout Canada, have been industriously circulated both in Canada and in Great Britain and in consequence the credit, not only of Canada as a whole but of the Grand Trunk company has been seriously damaged amongst British investors. As an instance of the stories that are being sent out along this line it may be noted that the London Times in a recent issue contained what purported to be an authoritative article declaring that the cost of the Grand Trunk Pacific from Winnipeg to Prince Albert was $150,000 per mile, exclusive of sleepers and rails, and that the cost of the National Transcontinental Railway made it practically certain that that road could not be operated at a profit and pay interest charges on the cost of construction. As a matter of fact the cost of the Grand Trunk Pacific from Winnipeg to Moncton is only about $70,000 per mile, including rails and sleepers, or less than half the figure mentioned in the London Times and reproduced in several British papers. The total cost of the whole Transcontinental line from Moncton to Prince Rupert works out to about $80,000 per mile with terminals and everything complete. This cost compares favorably with what the Canaon the government it is now reported that the opposition to further aid within the government ranks has very considerably modified.

Accompanying the Canadian Northern forces was Z. A. Lash, K.C., Director of the Canadian Northern and Director of the Canadian Bank of Commerce which is deeply interested in the financing of the railway company. Mr. Lash saw Mr. White and there is little doubt that the conference was successful. Of Mr. Lash and of his connection with the Canadian Northern and his relations with Mr. White, the Minister of Finance, William German, M.P., for Welland, said in the House last session:

"The Canadian Northern Railway Company is supposed to be controlled by Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann, knights of the realm. The gentleman who really controls the Canadian Northern is like Sir Joseph Porter, first lord of the admiralty in the comic opera 'Pinafore'—he sits at his desk and never goes to sea. Mr. Zebulon A. Lash is the gentleman who controls the Canadian Northern, and this is the gentleman who got up the round robin, and induced Mr. White to sign it, with Sir Byron Walker and the other noble eighteen against the reciprocity resolution. He was the man who made Mr. White Minister of Finance. Now he is coming for his reward."

A portion of that reward was granted last session. It is expected that a second and larger instalment will be brought down in the Commons by the Government in its dying days.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE STORY.

EXPENDITURES IN CONNECTION WITH THE TRANSCONTINENTAL INVESTIGATING COMMISSION REPORT NOT GIVEN IN THE REPORT ITSELF.

WANTED! Two Commissioners to make a report to the Government which will reflect upon the Construction of the Transcontinental Railway under the Laurier administration. Will pay for services during the first two years as salaries, $66,503.43, allow for travelling and other expenses, $11,884.96, and provide a private car, porters, etc., at a cost of $17,500; in other words incur a total expenditure of $98,888.39. Other rewards may follow. Apply to the Borden Government.

Some such advertisement as this would about sum up the position of the Borden Government with respect to the report of the Transcontinental Investigating Commission. The Commissioners, Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton, were appointed on February 14th, 1912, at a salary of $65 per day each and expenses. By a return brought down to the House of Commons a short time ago the Government stated that for this report they had paid to Mr. F. P. Gutelius $27,465.48, and to Mr. Lynch-Staunton $24,038.01, and for other expenses $11,884.96. By referring to the Government reports it will be seen that Mr. Gutelius has also drawn since the first of May last, at which date he was appointed manager of the I.C.R., a salary at the rate of $20,000 a year, or to the middle of February, 1914, at which time the return above referred to was made, $14,999.74. Thus for pay and salary allowance alone he has drawn in two years no less than $42,465.42. Mr. Gutelius was also provided with a private car which cost the Government $17,500.

Is it any wonder that a report helpful to the Borden Government was made? No mention was made in the official return as to whether any of the expenses of Mr. Lynch-Staunton when canvassing for the Conservative candidate in South Bruce last October were charged up in this account.

"Is it not true that no final definite agreement was made any one contractor by the old mission?"

for their share of the profit on two large contracts sub-let to O'Brien, Fowler and McDougall. It was deliberately stated that the National Transcontinental commission had held back 10 per cent of the monies due to the latter contractors, and had paid it over to the Messrs. Davis as clear profit, without the latter having turned a spade. In reply to a question by Hon. G. P. Graham in the Commons on Wednesday last, the acting Minister of Railways, Hon. Dr. Reid, declared that this statement was not based on facts. The National Transcontinental Commissioners, admitted Dr. Reid did not pay this money over to M. P. and J. T. Davis and if that sum were paid at all, which is not shown, it was paid by the sub-contractors under their agreement with the loan contractors and was in accordance with the usual agreement, allowing a ten per cent margin in cases of sub-letting.

This charge of a $740,000 "rake-off" has been duly exploited in the Government press and has been made one of the main items of concrete criticism of the Laurier Government in connection with the report. For a Royal Commission or for a Government to deliberately publish such a deliberate and mischievous "misrepresentation"—not to use a stronger word—is with-out parallel in the history of Canada. From this one fact alone may be judged what reliance can be placed on the fairness and truthfulness of the whole report.

Another significant fact brought out during the week was that Mr. Gutelius was, at the time of his appointment as commissioner, an American citizen. He began his duties on February 1st, 1912, at a salary of $65 a day and expenses. It was not until February 23rd, or nearly a month later that he became a naturalized British subject.

It may be further noted that the acting Minister of Railways informed the House that neither Mr. Lynch-Staunton nor Mr. Gutelius was sworn "to faithfully and impartially perform their duties" nor were the sittings of the commission open to the public. Whatever evidence was taken, was taken in private and for the most part the commissioners were both counsel for the prosecution and judges as to the nature of the evidence sought and the conclusions to be drawn therefrom.

The printed evidence on which their findings were based was not tabled in the Commons until the end of this week, or some three weeks after the cost of the Grand Trunk Pacific from Winnipeg to Moncton is only about $70,000 per mile, including rails and sleepers, or less than half the figure mentioned in the London Times and reproduced in several British papers. The total cost of the whole Transcontinental line from Moncton to Prince Rupert works out to about $80,000 per mile with terminals and everything complete. This cost compares favorably with what the Canadian Pacific main line has cost, and the standard of construction of the new road is considerably higher.

The whole report with its gross inaccuracies and its far-reaching influence is nothing less than a national crime, committed with the joint objects of making political capital for one party and serving the private interests of rival railway corporations.

AGAIN SHAKING THE PLUM TREE.

MESSRS. MACKENZIE AND MANN ASKING FOR FORTY MILLIONS THIS TIME.

Those who helped the present Government to power by influence, and by contributions to the campaign funds, have wasted no time in coming to the administration for their reward. Among these are the Canadian Northern magnates, Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann, who received their first instalment of reward last session, when the Government jammed through Parliament during the declining days of the session in the face of Liberal opposition, a cash contribution to the company of nearly sixteen million dollars. It was prophesied then that the company would be back again this session for a second instalment on account of services rendered to the party. And the prophecy has been verified. Sir William Mackenzie, Sir Donald Mann, and the various agents of the company have, for the past few weeks been the most familiar figures in the parliamentary corridors, and the most prominent topic of conversation has been the demand of the company for a loan estimated at from twenty-five to forty millions, with the company's demand naturally for the latter amount.

The usual rumors of rebellion within the Government ranks if further proposals for opening the treasury to Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann are brought down, have been circulated, and "insurgents" have sprung up who have declared that that they will resign their seats rather than vote for such proposals. Prominent among those have been R. B. Bennett of Calgary, W. F. Nickle of Kingston and others. It is to be noted, however, that when the straight loan of last session was proposed these men took a similar stand, and rumblings and rumors of rebellion were circulated in the same way. When the bill came up, however, these so-called insurgents voted solidly against safe-guarding amendments introduced by the opposition, and when finally the bill was brought to third reading there was not numbered among the Liberal opposition to its passing a single bolting vote from the Conservative benches. It was rumored at the time that the incipient rebellion was quelled by a promise of a substantial increase in the sessional indemnity of the members.

Hon. W. T. White, who has been floating a loan on the London market, announced the other day that no application for a loan had reached the government from any railway company. Next day Sir William stated that though no "formal" application had been made, the government knew what the company wanted, because their case had been placed clearly before them. Following Mr. White's statement the Canadian Northern's forces arrived at the capital in full strength, and as a result of the pressure which they have brought to bear drawn in two years no less than $12,465,42. Mr. Gutelius was also provided with a private car which cost the Government $17,500.

Is it any wonder that a report helpful to the Borden Government was made? No mention was made in the official return as to whether any of the expenses of Mr. Lynch-Staunton when canvassing for the Conservative candidate in South Bruce last October were charged up in this account.

QUESTIONS FOR TRANSCONTINENTAL COMMISSION TO ANSWER.

Hon. Mr. Parent, Chairman of the Transcontinental Commission prior to the appointment of Major Leonard by the Borden Government, has asked certain questions of his successor which have an important bearing on the Lynch-Staunton-Gutelius report recently presented to Parliament. None of these questions have been answered, so the allegations they contain may therefore be regarded as true. They are as follows:

"Is it not true that the actual commission of the Transcontinental Railway consisting of Major Leonard himself alone, effected changes in certain sections of the Transcontinental line which involved a considerable increase in the cost of construction?"

"Is it not true, that these changes were contrary to the specific proposition between the Canadian Government and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway provisions made on July 29th 1903, and confirmed by Act of Parliament?"

"Is it not true that the said commission in concert with the Gutelius-Staunton commission had work done to the extent of thousands of dollars outside of and in violation of existing contracts?"

"Is it not true, that the said commission bought about 170 arpents of land, at a thousand dollars an arpent, as stated for the construction of shops at a distance of more than three miles from the main line?"

"Is it not true, that the existing commission paid a considerable indemnity to the Canadian Northern Quebec Railway, for cutting the old Gosford road in two?"

ORDER GIVEN ILLEGALLY.

"Is it not true that a steam ferry to take cars across the river at Quebec was ordered in England by Major Leonard, at a cost of $560,000?"

"Is it not true that this order was given illegally?"

"Is it not true that we have factories and equipment in this country capable of turning out a ferry boat such as was required, and all other furnishings, for a cost of not more than $400,000?"

"Is it not true that the old commission was given expert advice to this effect, and was contemplating issuing tenders?"

"Is it not true that the legislation with regard to the Transcontinental provided that reference shall be given where possible to material manufactured in the country?"

"Is it not true that the substance of the report given by the Staunton-Gutelius inquiry bears on reports already revised by the Hodgins and Lumsden inquiries, and for the most part rejected by arbitration between the two parties?"

little about temperature. Between the temperature of the surface of the sun, estimated at 6,000 degrees C., and absolute zero, estimated at minus 273 degrees C., very little has ever been discovered. The field of research has been practically restricted to 725 degrees or between the temperature of liquid air (minus 200 degrees) and the first visible red of heated iron (plus 525 degrees). We know that at a temperature of 1,000 degrees C. twenty-nine metals become liquid, at 1,069 degrees gold fuses, tungsten melts at 3,000 degrees, the temperature of the electric arc is 3,720 degrees, and here begins the great unknown in the world of heat.

The hottest thing on earth is the electric furnace, with a temperature of nearly 3,730 degrees. In this intense heat even the diamond can be melted and boiled like water. But this is barely halfway to the temperature of the surface of the sun, and it is thought that research in these higher temperatures will ultimately result in the greatest discoveries of the age.

What these discoveries may be no one can foresee, any more than anyone could have foretold the results of the discovery of radium.—New York

Which Foot Walks Faster?

If you will take a pavement that is clear, so that there will be no interference, and walk briskly in the center, you will find that before you have gone fifty yards you have veered very much to one side. You must not make any effort, of course, to keep in the center, but if you will think of something and endeavor to walk naturally you cannot keep a direct line. The explanation of this lies in the propensity of one foot to walk faster than the other, or one leg takes a longer stride than the other, causing one to walk to one side. You can try an experiment in this way by placing two sticks about eight feet apart, then stand off about sixty feet, blindfold yourself and endeavor to walk between them.
You will find it almost impossible.

Razon, one of the leading evening journals, is issued at 5 o'clock. About twenty minutes before that hour the newsboys, mostly young men from eighteen to twenty-five years of age, gather in the street in front of the newspaper office. When the papers are brought out the clerk hands a bundle to each, and away he starts at a full gallop. All the business in the center of the town is done by ordinary "foot newsboys;" the horsemen race away to their "beats" in the suburbs, shouting with all their might, "La Razon!
La Razon!"

A customer who wishes to buy a paper steps to the sidewalk and holds out his arm. The horse knows the signal and pulls up so short that it is a wonder the rider is not catapulted over his head.

So efficient is this system of equestrian newsboys that a dweller in the outskirts of Montevideo gets his evening paper almost as soon as the man who lives in the very heart of the city.

ORIGIN OF THE TELEPHONE.

It Sprung From Bell's Efforts to Teach the Deaf to Speak.

Professor Alexander Graham Bell is reported to have explained in a lecture how he came to invent the telephone as follows:

"My father invented a symbol by which deaf mutes could converse, and finally I invented an apparatus by which the vibrations of speech could be seen, and it turned out to be a telephone. It occurred to me to make a machine that would enable one to hear vibrations. I went to an aurist, and he advised me to take the human ear as my model. He supplied me with a dead man's ear, and with this ear I experimented, and upon applying the apparatus I found that the dead man's ear wrote down the vibrations.

"I arrived at the conclusion that if I could make iron vibrate on a dead man's ear I could make an instrument more delicate which would cause those vibrations to be heard and understood. I thought if I placed a delicate piece of steel over an electric magnet I could get a vibration, and thus the telephone was completed.

"The telephone arose from my attempts to teach the deaf to speak. It arose from my knowledge not of electricity, but as a teacher of the deaf.
Had I been an electrician I would not have attempted it."

"Belling the Cat."

"Who will bell the cat?" is a curious old proverb, famous in parable and in history. The mice, says the parable, held a consultation how to secure themselves from the cat, and they resolved to hang a bell about the cat's neck to give warning when she approached, but after they had resolved on doing it they were as far off as ever, for who would do it?

Both parable and proverb have immortalized themselves in history.
When the Scottish nobles met at Stirling in a body they proposed to take Spence, the obnoxious favorite of James II., and hang him and so get rid of him.

"Ah," said Lord Grey, "that's very well said, but who'll bell the cat?"

"That will I," said the black Earl Angus. He undertook the task, accomplished it and was called "Archibald Bell the Cat" until his dying day.—

COW TESTING PAYS.

There can be no question as to the bright light shed by dairy records on the actual performance of herds and of individual cows. They are useful alike in proving the superiority of certain cows as well as the effect of good dairy practice.

For instance, records show that in one month a seven year old cow gave 1,430 pounds of milk, but another seven year old in the same herd gave only 400 pounds. Again it is found that 22 cows averaged 1,197 pounds of milk in a month, while another lot of 22 averaged only 545 pounds of milk. Cows that are kept as dairy cows, fed and bred for production of milk and fat, are proved by their records. Even from amongst those so kept, selection is necessary, otherwise the herd will fall off in its average. But the individual record, so easily kept, will point definitely to those which are worth keeping.

The value of a pure bred dairy sire is also revealed when comparing herds. One herd of 14 cows gave 306 pounds of fat in a month. In an adjoining herd of 14, where cow testing has been carried on for four years and where the sire is pure bred, the yield was 556 pounds of fat, in other words the income was seventy-five dollars more for that one month.

Be sure you take up cow testing this year, because it pays well.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

MR. EVANTUREL'S COURSE.

Evanturel makes a long statement to the House in which he does not appear to say much. He apologizes for the letter he wrote offering his services to the hotel-keepers and asking for $10,000 in return, but does not say the two words most required of him, namely: "I resign." Hon. J. J. Foy, Leader of the Government, remarks on the omission and says that if the resignation is not forthcoming, steps will have to be taken to force the Member for Prescott to resign. Mr. Rowell concurs in this plan.

POLITICAL CONTRIBUTIONS.

Mr. Rowell introduces a Bill to prohibit campaign contributions either to Provincial or Municipal elections from corporations, Government contractors all holders of liquor licenses, whether bar, shop, brewery, distillery or wholesale and all associations whose purpose it is to further the interests of the trade in intoxicating liquors. In addition to a fine of not more than $5,000 and not less than $1,000, those guilty of violating this law are liable to imprisonment of not more than one year and not less than three months.

It is not known yet what attitude the Government will take towards this bill. Last year Sir James Whitney approved the general principle of prohibiting campaign contributions from certain sources and also requiring the publication of campaign expenses as embodied in the bill of J. G. Anderson, Liberal member for South Bruce. Last year's Bills were withdrawn on the understanding that they could be re-introduced this year.

Mr. Rowell's Bill adds Government contractors and license holders and Associations to the corporations which alone were debarred by last year's proposal. The fines are also more drastic and the imprisonment provision is new. The latter is the most important part of the Bill as the prospect of jail will often deter a man who could not be held back by fear of merely a fine. It is recognized that if Mr. Rowell's bill became law a big step in advance would be taken to purify politics in Ontario.

THE BUDGET.

Hon. I. B. Lucas presents the Budget speech and shows what he claims to be a surplus of $320,000. The financial critic of the Opposition C. M. Bowman of North Bruce, and other Liberal speakers contend that this alleged surplus is artificial and that in reality a deficit marks the year's finance.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE.

As a Member for a rural Constituency, Mr. Bowman makes a vigorous onslaught against the Government for extravagance in building the new Government House. The estimates first amounted to about $400,000 but the Government's own figures now show more than $800,000 and Mr. Bowman estimates the final and completed expenditure at $1,250,000. He says that this sum is more than the total assessment of the largest township in the County of Bruce, and characterizes the Government's action as "a wanton waste of the people's money and one which is directly opposed to the spirit of democracy of which Ontario is proud and which the Government should encourage rather than discourage in this way."

Wilde and Ouida.

Oscar Wilde once asked Ouida what she herself considered the chief feature in her work which won success.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, March 9.—Wheat prices for May delivery hardened today on account of diminished farm reserves, but the July option proved relatively weak, owing to ideal conditions for the new crop. The close was steady at the same as Saturday night to 1/4c higher. In corn the outcome varied from 1/4c decline to 1/4c advance; oats showed a net loss of 1/4c to 1/4c, and provisions a setback of 5c to 15c.

HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS AND SETTLERS' TRAINS TO THE WEST.

Those taking advantage of above Excursions should bear in mind the many exclusive features offered by the Canadian Pacific Railway in connection with a trip to the west. It is the only all-Canadian route. Only line operating through trains to western Canada. No change of depots. Only line operating through standard and tourist sleepers to Winnipeg and Vancouver. All equipment is owned and operated by Canadian Pacific Railway, affording the highest form of efficiency.

Homeseekers' fares will be in effect each Tuesday, March 3rd to October 27th inclusive, and round-trip second-class tickets will be sold via Canadian Pacific Railway from Ontario points (Azilda and east) at very low fares—for example, from Toronto, also west and north of Toronto, to Winnipeg and return $35, to Edmonton and return $43. Other points in proportion. Fares from points east of Toronto will be slightly higher. Return limit two months.

Homeseekers' trains leave Toronto each Tuesday during March and April.

Each Tuesday during March and April the Canadian Pacific will run Settlers' trains to Winnipeg and west and for the accommodation of settlers travelling with live stock and effects a colonist car will be attached to the settlers effects train. This car will leave Toronto on regular train at 10.20 p.m., and on arrival at West Toronto it will be attached to settlers' effects train as mentioned above.

For those not travelling with live stock and effects special colonist car will be attached to regular trains from Toronto, running through to Winnipeg without change. No charge is made for accommodation in colonist cars.

Tourists sleeping cars also operated on regular train leaving Toronto 10.20 p.m.

Oscar Wilde once asked Ouida what she herself considered the chief feature in her work which won success. "I am the only living English writer," she replied, "who knows how two dukes talk when they are by themselves." It might with truth be said of Wilde that he was the only living English writer who knew how two duchesses talk when they are by themselves.—From Archibald Henderson's "European Dramatists."

Truss Torture

Once Thought Necessary, but Now Your Search for Relief is Ended.

Wonderful Method Retains Rupture Without Knife Danger or Pain.

J. Y. EGAN, Specialist of Toronto

Old-fashioned truss torture is no longer necessary. Gallig, slipping trusses and barbarous methods of treating rupture are done away with by the wonderful invention of a specialist who has devoted fifty years to this one affliction. The marvelous new EGAN "CURATRUS" gives to the ruptured instant relief, rest and security where all others fail. It stops all irritation and restores every part to its natural position as soon as it is used and for all time and old style trusses are thrown away.

"EGAN'S CURATRUS" cures are absolutely without operation and the cost is small. Multitudes of cured men, women and children testify. Also endorsed by many physicians. Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Nothing complicated, no pain or irritation, but just a natural retentive method. Immediate relief guaranteed. No fakes or lies—just straight business. Do not lay this aside, or delay, but tear off free coupon now.

Free Consultation Coupon.
This coupon, upon presentation to J. Y. Egan, rupture specialist, (office, No. 20, 14 East King Street, Toronto) who will visit the towns on dates mentioned below, will entitle bearer to free consultation and examination of samples. Ask at hotel office for number of my room. Note dates.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, March 9.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ended March 7 were 1300 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 1450 hogs and 300 calves. The supply on the market this morning for sale amounted to 1000 cattle, 50 sheep and lambs, 1100 hogs and 200 calves.

There has been no improvement in the trade in cattle since this day week, owing to the fact that packers and butchers state that the consumption of beef has decreased considerably since the Lenten season commenced, and it is being felt more this year in this department of the trade than ever before.

Several carloads of medium quality cows and bulls were bought for shipment to Ottawa and Quebec; but, apart from this, the market was purely local and dull. Choice steers sold at $8 to $8.25 per 100 pounds.

The market for sheep and lambs was strong.

Hogs were in good demand at prices practically unchanged.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $8 to $8.25; do., medium, $7 to $7.50; do., common, $5 to $6; canners, $4 to $4.25; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $6.50 to $6.75; do., medium, $5.50 to $6.25; do., bulls, $5 to $7.25; milkers, choice, each, $100 to $110; do., common and medium, each, $80 to $90; springers, $70 to $75.

Sheep ewes, $6 to $6.50; bucks and cubs, $5.50 to $5.75. Lambs, $8.50 to $9.

Hogs, f.o.b., $9.75 to $10.

Calves, $3 to $10.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, March 9.—Cattle—Receipts, 2200; fairly active and 15c to 25c higher; prime steers, $8.85 to $9.15; shipping, $8 to $8.75; butchers, $7 to $8.35; heifers, $6 to $8.15; cows, $3.55 to $7.25; bulls, $6 to $7.50; stockers and feeders, $5.75 to $7.25; stock heifers, $5.25 to $5.75; fresh cows and springers, steady, $35 to $90.

Veals—Receipts, 1000; active and $1 lower; $6 to $12.

Hogs—Receipts, 14,500; active and 10c to 15c higher; heavy and mixed, $9.05 to $9.10; yorkers, $9 to $9.15; pigs, $8.5 to $8.90; roughs, $8.25 to $8.40; stags, $6.50 to $7.50; dairies, $9 to $9.10.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 11,500; handy, active; sheep, steady; lambs, 10c higher; lambs, $5.50 to $6; yearlings, $5 to $7.25; wethers, $6.25 to $6.40; ewes, $3 to $6; sheep, mixed, $6 to $6.15.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, March 9.—Cattle—Receipts, 24,000; market, steady; beefs, $7.25 to $9.70; Texas steers, $7.10 to $8.10; stockers and feeders, $5 to $8.10; cows and heifers, $3.65 to $8.55; calves, $7.50 to $10.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 30,000; market, active; light, $8.50 to $8.75; mixed, $8.45 to $8.70; heavy, $8.30 to $8.75; rough, $8.30 to $8.45; pigs, $7 to $8.40; bulk of sales, $8.60 to $8.75.

Sheep—Receipts, 20,000; market, steady; native, $4.85 to $6.25; yearlings, $5.35 to $7.10; lambs, native, $6.75 to $7.75.

Police Capture Mrs. Pankhurst.

GLASGOW, March 10.—Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of the militant suffragettes, was arrested last night at a suffragette meeting after a fight with the police, in which twenty women were hurt and several constables badly bruised.

Mrs. Pankhurst was speaking when the police dashed into the hall with clubs drawn. A row of barbed wire stretched across the platform, under the floral decorations, proved efficacious, with the aid of some men using flower pots, chairs and anything else handy as missiles, in checking the police.

A NATION BUILDER HAS PASSED IN DEATH OF SIR GEORGE ROSS

Sir George Ross, L.L.D., ex-Premier of Ontario and Liberal leader in the Senate, died at Toronto General Hospital at 8 o'clock Saturday morning. After a protracted illness, extending from January 24, when the aged statesman was suddenly stricken at Ottawa, the end came peacefully. Sir George just seemed to sleep away. Dr. Garnet Greer of the hospital staff and a nurse were at the bedside until the end came. Lady Ross, who had been summoned at 7 o'clock, arrived at the entrance to the building at the moment of dissolution, and Dr. Wm. Goldie came in a few moments later. For several days the physicians had despaired of hope, and the only question was how long the vital spark would hold out.

On Thursday Sir George had a spell of consciousness. He was bright, cheerful and showed an interest in what was taking place around him. Then he lapsed into a state of coma from which he partially revived on Friday morning and was able to give his son, Mr. Duncan C. Ross, M.P., directions about sending copies of his new book to his friends. "Don't let any of them be overlooked," was his parting admonition. After that unconsciousness again came over him and he continued to grow weaker until death came.

It was this rally that made the physicians apprehensive of the end. It lasted until late Friday night. Dr. Goldie and his assistants battled against a forlorn hope while the family waited in an adjoining room. It was inevitable that a relapse should follow. Dr. Goldie left to secure a few hours' rest, the family gathering dispersed to heed a momentary summons, and Dr. Greer remained on watch.

THE DOCTOR'S FINAL BULLETIN.

According to Dr. Goldie's final bulletin the immediate cause of death was due to nephritis and uraemic poisoning. Sir George was conscious until a week ago last Thursday, but since then his mind was clear for only short intervals. At 5 o'clock on Saturday morning the two physicians made a last desperate stand against death, and when it was seen that nothing could be done Dr. Goldie marked off the hours until eight o'clock.

Although not unexpected, the death of Sir George Ross was received with a distinct shock by the whole Province.

MANY SYMPATHETIC WORDS.

Sir James Whitney, who is slowly recovering from a severe illness, Hon. J. J. Foy and Mr. N. W. Rowell, K. C., leader of the Opposition in the Legislature, made public their personal tributes to the man who for nearly half the natural span of life had been a conspicuous figure in the legislative councils of the Province. Other messages were received from Senator and Mrs. Dandurand, Montreal; W. B. Burgoyne, St. Catharines; A. G. Fraser, London Liberal Association; Charles Magee, Ottawa; Colonel A. T. Thompson, Ottawa; Frederick Peel, Strathcona, Sask.

It is a curious coincidence that the death of Sir George occurred at the General Hospital just as preparations were being made to remove to his home, Sir James Whitney, his old political adversary, who had occupied a nearby suite, and who has almost recovered.

FUNERAL WAS PRIVATE.

The funeral, which was private, took place at 10.30 o'clock Tuesday morning from Sir George Ross' late residence, 3 Elmsley place, to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

The honorary pall-bearers were: Sir John Gibson, Hon. F. R. (Judge) Latchford, Mr. R. B. Belden, Senator Jaffray, Mr. P. C. Larkin and Hon. Geo. P. Graham.

SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

George William Ross was born near Nairn, in Middlesex county, Ontario, on the 18th of September, 1841. His father was James Ross, and his mother's maiden name was Ellen McKinnon. They were natives of Ross-shire, Scotland, but came to Canada in 1832.

He received his early education in the public schools, then going to Strathroy High School, and later taking a course in Toronto Normal School. In 1879, with the love of scholarship strong within him, at an age when the majority of men are settling down to a routine of middle life, he took his matriculation in law at Albert College, Belleville, and was graduated from that seat of learning in 1883 with the degree of L.L.B. In the same year he became a solicitor, and in 1887 was called to the Bar of his native Province, but never practiced law, because his public duties occupied all his time.

HIS REPRESENTATION OF WEST MIDDLESEX.

Always a Liberal in politics, Hon. Mr. Ross enjoyed the rare distinction of representing the same constituency of West Middlesex for an unbroken period of thirty-four years, eleven in the Commons and twenty-three in the Legislature. He was first elected to the House of Commons on the 27th of August, 1872, in a general election. In 1874 he was returned by acclamation, and in 1878 and 1882 he held the

Always a Liberal in politics, Hon. Mr. Ross enjoyed the rare distinction of representing the same constituency of West Middlesex for an unbroken period of thirty-four years, eleven in the Commons and twenty-three in the Legislature. He was first elected to the House of Commons on the 27th of August, 1872, in a general election. In 1874 he was returned by acclamation, and in 1878 and 1882 he held the seat after very severe contests. The landslide caused by the National Policy so successfully advocated by Sir John A. Macdonald in 1878 affected rural as well as urban constituencies, making Mr. Ross' campaign unusually difficult, and in 1882 he had the gerrymander of his constituency to contend with, which placed him, as well as nearly all the other active Liberal members of the House from Ontario, at a great disadvantage.

In December, 1883, being asked by Hon. (later Sir) Oliver Mowat to enter his Government, Mr. Ross was on the 23rd of that month sworn in an Minister of Education, and again it was West Middlesex for which he sat. The Liberal party in the general election of that year was greatly reduced in size, and West Middlesex was the battleground for a very shary contest, the then leader of the Opposition, now Sir Wm. R. Meredith, exerting his strength to the utmost to overthrow Mr. Ross. In spite of all, however, the Liberal majority was considerably increased, and a similar accession of strength was noted in the victories of Mr. Ross in the subsequent elections of 1886, 1890, 1894, 1898, 1902 and 1904.

Such a career, extending over thirty-four years, and including ten successful contests and an acclamation, with no defeats at the polls, could not fail to be gratifying to both Mr. Ross and his constituents. His public duties necessitated his changing his home from West Middlesex to Toronto in 1897, but the kindly relations between him and the electors of the riding he represented continued undisturbed.

Sir George's son, Mr. Duncan Campbell Ross, is the present representative of West Middlesex in the House of Commons. He is a good counterpart of his father, the similarity in eye and voice being remarkable.

IN THE FEDERAL ARENA.

Mr. Ross' training in public life in the ten or eleven years he spent in the House of Commons was unusually thorough. His speeches are still remembered for their impassioned eloquence. He was a hard worker in committee, and a painstaking student of legislative matters. The chairmanship of two important committees fell to his lot, those of Hansard and Printing.

The agitation in favor of reciprocity is traceable to a resolution introduced by Hon. Ross in the House of Commons in 1882, asking for the opening of negotiations looking to the establishment of reciprocal trade between Canada and the United States.

Even after his entry into the Ontario Government his interest in Federal politics did not wane. In the Dominion contest of 1896 his speeches were most effective.

His condition of health at that time made his work especially hard, for he was already a victim of rheumatism, from which he suffered increasingly to the end of his life. Mrs. Ross frequently accompanied him on his political tours, taking especial care to see that his food was of the proper kind and that his comfort and health were not imperilled unduly by changes of temperature and indifferent accommodation.

A BETTER REMEDY THAN NASTY SALTS.

Few people like to take physic, especially salts, because they are so disagreeable to take and because of the griping and pains they cause. Rexall Orderlies enable you to take less physic, and all without griping, purging or excessive looseness. Salts and harsh physics usually give only temporary relief and often leave the bowels worse off than before.

Rexall Orderlies move the bowels promptly, and soothe, tone and strengthen the intestinal muscles, leaving them healthy and regular in action. They taste like candy, and the movement they cause is as easy and natural as though your bowels were in perfect health and you never had to take physic at all. We have so much faith in Rexall Orderlies that we urge you to try them with the understanding that, if they do not satisfy you in every way, all you have to do to get your money back is to tell us. We honestly believe them to be the best bowel remedy made. In vest pocket tin boxes; 10c, 25c, 50c.

The Husbands of Edith

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

Copyright by Dodd, Mead & Co.

PROLOGUE

This humorous tale, written in McCutcheon's best vein, is faultless in its morals, despite its title, and cumulative in its interest. It may be stated in strict confidence that Edith did not actually have more than one husband; consequently the gentle reader need harbor no apprehension on this score. Like all other estimable married women, Edith had only one husband, but circumstances arose through which it seemed necessary for her husband to be in two places at the same time, and how this was accomplished and what the outcome was—But wait a bit; let George Barr McCutcheon, the prince of story tellers, unfold among the younger men in New York, prosperous, successful and a menace to the old cry that a son of the rich cannot thrive in his father's domain. Nowadays he came to the old world for his breathing spells. He was able to combine dawdling and development without sacrificing one for the other, wherein lies the proof that his vacations were not akin to those taken by most of us.

The fortnight in Paris was to be followed by a week in St. Petersburg and a brief tour of Sweden and Norway. His stay in the gay city was drawing to a close. That very morning he expected to book for St. Petersburg, leaving in three days.

Suddenly his glance fell upon a name in the society column before him, "Roxbury Medcroft." His face lighted up with genuine pleasure. An old friend, a boon companion in bygone days was this same Medcroft, a broad minded, broad gauged young Englishman who had profited by a stay of some years in the States. They had studied together in Paris and they had toiled together in New York. This is what he read:

Mr. and Mrs. Roxbury Medcroft of London are stopping at the Ritz, en route to Vienna. Mr. Medcroft will attend the meeting of Austrian architects, to be held there next week, and, with his wife, will afterward spend a fortnight in the German Alps, the guests of the Alfred Rodneys of Seattle.

"Dear old Rox, I must look him up at once," mused Brock. "The Rodneys of Seattle? Never heard of 'em." He looked at his watch, signed his check, deposited the usual franc, acknowledged Charles' well practised smile of thanks, and pushed back his chair, his gaze traveling involuntarily toward the portals of the American bar across the court, just beyond the concierge's quarters. Simultaneously, a tall figure emerged from the bar, casting eager glances in all directions—a tall figure in a checked suit, a gray cap, white reindeer gloves, high collar, and gray spats. Brock came to his feet quickly. The monocle dropped from the other's eye, and his long legs carried him eagerly toward the American.

"Medcroft—bless your heart—I was just on the point of looking you up at the Ritz. It's good to see you," Brock cried as they clasped hands.

"Of all the men and of all the times, Brock, you are the most opportune."

"Do I appear to be agitated?"

"Well, I should say so."

"Well, I am. You know how I loath asking a favor of any one. Besides, it's rather an extraordinary one I'm going to ask of you. Came to me in a flash this morning when I saw your name in the paper. Sort of inspiration, 'pon my word. I think Edith sees it the same as I, although I haven't had time to go into it thoroughly with her. She's ripping, you know—pluck to the very core."

Brock's face expressed bewilderment and perplexity.

"Won't you have another drink, old man?" he asked gently.

"Another? Hang it all, I haven't had one in a week! Come along. I must talk it all over with you before I introduce you to her. You must be prepared."

"Introduce me to whom?" demanded Brock, pricking up his ears. He was following Medcroft to the elevator.

"To my wife—Edith," said Medcroft, annoyed by the other's obtuseness.

"Does it require preparation for an ordeal so charming?" laughed Brock. He was recalling the fact that Medcroft had married a beautiful Philadelphia girl some years ago in London, a young lady whom he had never seen, so thoroughly expatriated had she become in consequence of almost a lifetime residence in England. He remembered now that she was rich and that he had sent her a ridiculously expensive present and a congratulatory cablegram at the time of the wedding.

The Londoner did not respond to the innocuous query. He merely stared in a preoccupied, determined manner at the succeeding etages as they slipped downward. At the fourth floor they disembarked, and Brock led the way to his rooms, overlooking the inner court. Once inside with the door closed he turned upon the Englishman.

"Now, what's up, Rox? Are you in trouble?" he demanded.

"Are we quite alone?" Medcroft glanced significantly at the transom and the half closed bathroom door. With a laugh Brock led him into the bathroom and out and then closed the transom.

"You're darned mysterious," he said, pointing to a chair near the window. Medcroft drew another close up and seated himself.

"Brock," he said, lowering his voice and leaning forward impressively, "I want you to go to Vienna in my place." Brock stared hard. "You are a god-send, old man. You're just in time to do me the greatest of favors. It's utterly impossible for me to go to Vienna as I had planned, and yet it is equally unwise for me to give up the project. You see, I've just got to be in London and Vienna at the same time."

"It will require something more than a stretch of the imagination to do that, old man. But I'm game, and my plans are such that they can be changed readily to oblige a friend. I shan't mind the trip in the least, and I'll be only too happy to help you out. Gad! I thought by your manner that you were in some frightful difficulty."

"By Jove, Brock, you're a brick!" cried Medcroft, shaking the other's hand vigorously. At the same time his face expressed considerable uncertainty and no little doubt as to the future welfare of his as yet partially divulged proposition.

"It's easy to be a brick, my boy, if it involves no more than the changing of a single letter in one's name. I'd

"I'm d—d if I do!"

"What a stupid ass you are The Rodneys have never laid me. They know of me as Edi band, that's all. They are to in as Medcroft, of course."

CHAPTER I.

Husbands and Wife.

BROCK was breakfasting out of doors in the cheerful little garden of the Hotel Chatham. The sun streamed warmly upon the concrete floor of the court just beyond the row of palms and oleanders that fringed the rail against which his Herald rested, that he might read as he ran, so to speak. He was the only person having déjeuner on the "terrace," as he named it to the obsequious waiter who always attended him. Charles was the magnet that drew Brock to the Chatham, that excellent French hotel with the excellent English name.

Charles was standing, alert but pensive, quite near at hand, ready to replenish the bowl with honey. Brock was especially fond of it. Brock had gone to the Chatham for years just because Charles was a fixture there. Charles spoke the most execrably picturesque English, served with a punctiliousness that savored almost of the overbearing, and boasted that he had acquired the art of making American cocktails during a five weeks' residence in the United States.

It was a lazy morning. Brock was happy. He was even interested when a porter came forth and unraveled a long roll of garden hose, with which he abruptly began to splash water upon the concrete surface of the court without regard for distance or direction. Moreover, he proceeded to water the palms, operating from a spot no less than twenty feet away, until the faithful Charles restored him to earth by means of certain sudden injunctions and less moderate gestures from which it could be readily gathered that "m'sieur was eating, not watering." Whereupon the utterly unflushed porter splashed water at right angles, to Brock's relief. "M'sieur will pardon the boy," apologized Charles in deepest humility, taking much for granted. "It will be very warm today. Your serviette, m'sieur—it is damp. Pardon!" He flew away and back with another napkin. "Of course, m'sieur, the Chatham is not the Waldorf," he announced deprecatingly. "Pardieu," beating himself on the forehead, "I forgot! M'sieur does not like the Waldorf. Eh, bien, Paris is not New York no." Having sufficiently humbled Paris he withdrew into the back ground, rubbing his hands as if he were cleansing them of something unsightly. Brock spread one of the buttered biscuits with honey and inwardly admitted that Paris was not New York.

He was a good looking chap of thirty or thereabouts, an American to the core, bright eyed, keen witted, smooth faced, virile. From boyhood's earliest days he had spent a portion of his summers in Europe. Two or three years of his life had been employed in the beaux arts, fruitful years, for Brock had not wasted his opportunities. He had gone in for architecture and building. Today he stood high exclaimed the other. "I saw that you were here and bolted my breakfast to catch you. These beastly telephones never work. Oh, I say, old man, have you finished yours?"

"I'm in a deuce of a dilemma."

"Quite—but luckily I didn't have to bolt it. You're off for Vienna, I see. Sit down, Rox. Won't you have another egg and a cup of coffee? Do!"

"Thanks and no to everything you suggest. What you doing for the next half hour or so? I'm in a deuce of a dilemma and you've got to help me out of it." The Englishman looked at his watch and fumbled it nervously as he replaced it in his upper coat pocket. "That's a good fellow, Brock. You will be the ever present help in time of trouble, won't you?"

"My letter of credit is at your disposal, old man," said Brock promptly. He meant it. It readily may be seen from this that their friendship is no small item to be considered in the development of this tale.

"My dear fellow, that's the very thing I'm eager to thrust upon you—my letter of credit," exclaimed the other.

"What's that?" demanded Brock.

"I say, Brock, can't we go up to your rooms? Dead secret, you know. Really, old chap, I mean it. No one must get a breath of it. That's why I'm whispering. I'm not a lunatic, so don't stare like that. I'd do as much for you if the conditions were reversed."

"I dare say you would, Rox. But what the devil is it you want me to do?"

cried Medcroft, shaking the other's hand vigorously. At the same time his face expressed considerable uncertainty and no little doubt as to the future welfare of his as yet partially divulged proposition.

"It's easy to be a brick, my boy, if it involves no more than the changing of a single letter in one's name. I'd like to attend the convention anyway," said Brock amiably.

"Well, you see, Brock," said Medcroft lamely, "I fear you don't quite appreciate the situation. I want you to pose as Roxbury Medcroft."

"You—What do you mean?"

"I thought you'd find that a facer. That's just it. You are to go to Vienna as Roxbury Medcroft, not as yourself. Ha, ha! Kipping, eh?"

"Pon my soul, Rox, you are not in earnest?"

"Never more so."

"But, my dear fellow—"

"You won't do it? That's what your tone means," in despair.

"It isn't that, and you know it. I've got nothing to lose. It's you that will have to suffer. You're known all over Europe. What will be said when the trick is discovered? Gad, man!"

"Then you will go?" with beaming eyes. "I knew it would appeal to you as an American."

"What does it all mean?"

"It's all very simple, if one looks at it from the right angle, Brock. Up to last night I was blissfully committed to the most delightful of outings, so to speak. At 10 o'clock everything was changed. Mrs. Medcroft and I sat up all night discussing the situation with the messenger—my solicitor, by the way. The Vienna trip is out of the question, so far as I am concerned. It is of vital importance that I should return to London tonight, but it is even more vitally important that the world should say that I am in Vienna. See what I mean?"

"No, I'm hanged if I do."

"What I have just heard from London makes me shudder to think of the consequences if I go on east tonight. I may as well tell you that there is a plot on foot to perpetrate a gigantic fraud against the people. The county council is to be hoodwinked out and out into moving forward certain building projects, involving millions of the people's money. Our firm has opposed a certain band of grafters, and when I left England it was pretty well settled that we had blocked their game. They have learned of my proposed absence and intend to steal a march on us while I am away. Without assuming too much credit to myself, I may say that I, your old friend, Roxbury, I am the one man who has proved the real thorn in the sides of these scoundrels. With me out of the way they feel that they can secure the adoption of all these infamous measures. My partners and the leaders on our side have sent for me to return secretly. They won't bring the matter to issue if they find that I've returned. It would be suicidal. Therefore it is necessary that we steal a march on 'em. I know the inside workings of the scheme. If I can steal back and keep under cover as an advisory chief, so to speak, we can well afford to let 'em rush the matter through, for then we can spring the coup and defeat them for good and all. But, don't you see, old man, unless they know that I've gone to Vienna they won't undertake the thing. That's why I'm asking you to go on to Vienna and pose as Roxbury Med-

All you've got to do is register at the Bristol, get interviewed by the papers, attend one or two sessions of the convention, which will be three days, and then go off into the country with the Rodneys. The reporters will do the rest."

"What do the Rodneys? My dear fellow, they object to the sub-plot. Really, you know, it's not a very good idea."

"Oh, take it, man, the Rodneys will know that there has been a plot. Perfectly simple, can't you?"

"—d-d if I do!"

"It's a stupid ass you are, Brock! The Rodneys have never laid eyes on you. They know me as Edith's husband's all. They are to take you to the convention, of course."

"At this point Brock set up an em-blem of remembrance. He began by telling his friend to scorn; then, as it persisted, went so far as to tell him severely to task for the prom-ise of composition on the unsuspecting's, to say nothing of the trick he played upon the convention of art."

"He was recognized as an impostor," he said warmly, "and booted out of the convention. I shudder to think of what the Rodneys will do to me when he tells the truth. Why, Medcroft, you are crazy. There will be dozens of people there who know you per-sonally by sight. You"—

"My dear boy, if they don't see me, they can't very well recognize me, can they? If necessary you can tell them in a moment and stay away from the convention altogether. Give a statement to the press from the privacy of your room—regret your inability to attend in the discussions and all that you know. Hire a nurse if necessary to tell the world to express an opinion on vital topics in my name. I don't care a hang what you only want 'em to think I'm not. No doubt our enemies will have a two hanging about to see that you actually off for a jaunt with the Rodneys, but they will be Viennese, and you won't know me from Adam. The odds, so long as Edith is standing by you? If she's willing to stand by you that you are her husband!"

"Lord!" half shouted Brock, to his feet, wide eyed. "You mean to say that she is—is—is to be with me?"

"Absolutely yes. She's also invit-ing course she's going."

"Mean that she's going just as you are going—by proxy?" murmured Brock helplessly.

"Yes, the devil! 'Tis on my soul, you're downright stupid. She is a proxy. They know her. The Rodneys are in some way connected with her, and all that—third cousin she isn't there to vouch for the device can you expect to?"

"—roft, you are crazy! No one insane man would submit his name to this. Why, good Lord, man, think of the scandal! She won't have a shred of credit."

around as if you expected to find me standing behind your back when she says 'Roxbury, dear!' I shan't be there, you know. She'll mean you. Don't forget that."

"Oh, I say," exclaimed Brock, balt-ing abruptly and staring in dismay at the confident conspirator, "will I have to wear a suit of clothes like that and an eyeglass and—and—good Lord! spats?"

"By Jove, you shall wear this very suit!" cried Medcroft, inspired. "We're of a size, and it won't fit you any better than it does me. Our clothes never fit us in London. Clever idea of yours, Brock, to think of it. And, here! We'll stop at this shop and pick up a glass. You can have all day for practice with it. And, I say, Brock, don't you think you can cultivate a—er—little more of an English style of speech? That twang of yours won't—"

"Heavens, man, I'm to be a low comedian too!" gasped Brock as he was fairly pushed on to the shop. Three minutes later they were on the side-walk, and Brock was in possession of an object he had scorned most of all things in the world—a monocle.

Arm in arm they sauntered into the Ritz. Medcroft retained his clasp on his friend's elbow as they went up in the lift, after the fashion of one who fears that his victim is contemplating flight. As they entered the comfortable little sitting room of the suite a young woman rose gracefully from the desk at which she had been writing. With perfect composure she smiled and extended her slim hand to the American as he crossed the room with Medcroft's jerky introduction dinging in his ears.

"My old friend, Brock, dear. He has consented to be your husband. You've never met your wife, have you, old man?" A blush spread over her exquisite face.

"Oh, Roxbury, how embarrassing! He hasn't even proposed to me. So glad to meet you, Mr. Brock. I've been trying to picture what you would look like ever since Roxbury went out to find you. Sit here, please, near me. Roxbury, has Mr. Brock really fallen into your terrible trap? Isn't it the most ridiculous proceeding, Mr. Brock?"

"Call him, Roxbury, my dear. He's fully prepared for it. And now let's get down to business. He insists upon talking it over with you. You don't mind me being present, do you, Brock? I dare say I can help you out a bit. I've been married four years."

For an hour the trio discussed the situation from all sides and in all its phases. When Brock arose to take his departure, he was irrevocably committed to the enterprise. He was, more-over, completely enchanted by the vista of harmless fun and sweet adventure that stretched before him. He went away with his head full of the brilliant, quick witted, loyal young American who was entering so heartily into the plot to deceive her own friends for the time being in order that her husband might profit in high places.

"She is ripping," he said to Medcroft in the hallway. All of the plans had been made and all of them had been approved by the young wife. She had shown wonderful perspicacity and fore-sight in the matter of details. Her capac-ity for selection and disposal was even more comprehensive than that of the two men, both of whom were some-ing the symmetry of his face. If one who has not the proper facial construction will but attempt the feat of holding a monocle in place for unbroken hours he may come to appreciate at least one of the trials which beset poor Brock.

Every one seemed to be staring at him. He heard more than one American in the scurrying throng say to another, "English," and he felt relieved until an Englishman or two upset his confidence by brutally alluding to him as a "confounded American toady."

It was quite train time before Mrs. Medcroft was seen hurrying in from the carriage way, pursued by a trio of facteurs laden with bags and boxes.

"Don't shake hands!" she warned in a quick whisper as they came together. "I recognized you by the clothes."

Wit of Beau Brummel.

Beau Brummel's popularity depended less upon his dress than upon his perfect self possession, his grace of bearing, his wit, his good looks and his good humor, according to Leon H. Vincent's "Dandies and Men of Letters." He was a handsome fellow, although the shape of his nose had been "modified" by the kick of a horse.

"His reputation for bright and caustic sayings was very great. The industrious biographer has collected all he could lay hands on, and there is life in them yet. Take, for example, this: Byng, one of the dandies, was blessed with a remarkable head of hair which curled naturally. Brummel saw him one day in a gig with a French poodle by his side and saluted him with, 'Ah, Byng, how do you do?—a family vehicle, I see.' And from that time on, we are told, the well haired dandy was known as 'Poodle Byng.'" what staggered by the boldness o more than one suggestion which came from her fruitful storehouse of roman-tic ideas. She had grasped the full hu-mor of the situation, from inception to denouement, and to all appearance was heart and soul deep in the venture, de-spising the risks because she knew that succor was always at her el-bow in the shape of her husband's loyal support. There was no condi-tion involved which could not be ex-plaind to her credit; adequate com-pensation for the merry sacrifice was to be had in the brief detachment from rigid English conventionality, in the hazardous injection of quixotism into an otherwise overly healthful life of platitudes. Society had become t sepulcher of youthful inspirations. S- welcomed the resurrection. The ex-quisite delicacy with which she ana-lyzed the cost and computed the in-terest won for her the warmest regard of her husband's friend, fellow con-spirator in a plot which involved the subtlest test of loyalty and honor.

"Yes," said Medcroft simply. "You won't have reason to change your opin-ion, Brock." He hesitated for a mo-ment and then burst out, rather plain-tively: "She's an awfully good sort demme, she is. And so are you, Brock. It's mighty decent of you. You're the only man in all the world that I could or would have asked to do this for me. You are my best friend, Brock—you always have been." He seized the American's hand and wrung it fer-vently. Their eyes met in a long look of understanding and confidence.

"I'll take good care of her," said Brock quietly.

"I know you will. Goodby, then. I'll see you late this afternoon. You leave this evening at 7:20 by the orient express. I've had the reserva-tions booked, and—and"—He hesitat-ed, a wry smile on his lips. "I daresay you won't mind making a pretense of looking after the luggage a bit, will you?"

"I shall take this opportunity to put myself in training against the day when I may be traveling away with a happy bride of my own. By the way, how long am I expected to remain in this state of matrimonial bliss? That's no small detail, you know, even though it escaped for the moment."

"Three weeks."

"Three weeks!" He almost reeled.

"That's a long time in these days of speedy divorces," said Medcroft blandly.

The Gare de l'Est was thronged with people when Brock appeared fully half an hour before departing time. In no little dismay he found himself wonder-ing if the whole of Paris was going away or, on the other hand, if the rest of the continent was arriving. He felt a fool in Medcroft's unspeakable check-ed suit, and the eyeglass was a much more obstinate, untractable thing than he had even suspected it could be. The right side of his face was in a condition of semiparalysis, due to the muscular exactions required. He had a sickening fear that the scowl that marked his brow was destined to form a perpetual alliance with the smirk at the corner of his nose, forever destroy-

TREES AND SHRUBBERY.

They Should Be Attended to at This Season of the Year.

If there is any pruning to be done in the orchard or about the lawn do it before growth begins in the spring. After the orchard is pruned look after the shrubbery and shade trees. If any large limbs of the trees of the lawn are diseased or in a partially dying condition they should be sawed off close up to the trunks of the trees and wounds painted with coal tar or some other paint that will stop the pores of the sound wood and prevent the entrance of the germs of decay.

Go through the peach orchard and dig out all borers from the roots of the peach trees before spring opens. These borers are not very active during winter and should be dug out be-may be treated very much the same way the dentist fills the cavity in a tooth. The decayed wood of the cavity is first chiseled out, then the cavity is painted with coal tar, creosote or some good wood preservative. Following this the cavity is filled with sand and cement mortar. A very good proportion to use is two parts of sand to one part of cement. If the cavity is very large pieces of broken stone may be used in the mortar to help fill up. If the work is well done the tree will often grow sufficiently to almost cover the entire cement filling. A tree is not entirely unlike an animal—its life may often be prolonged by the skill of the (tree) doctor.

It is doubtful if the man who raises average crops is really making more than expenses. To make money farming you must get bumper yields. Intensive farming is not so much small farming as it is better farming per acre. How big is an acre? Well, it is about as big as the man who owns it.—Farm and Fireside.

Geraniums.

After the midwinter there will be room enough to space out the geraniums and other bedding stock. The cuttings that were placed in flats and the young stock in two inch pots should be shifted to the three inch size and spaced on the benches so that a good growth is encouraged. As soon as well established in these pots the top can be cut off and another cutting obtained. All the young stock possible should be taken from the plants selected in the fall for propagating purposes, for all the cuttings from which it is expected to produce good sized plants should be in the propagating bench by Feb. 1. Any rooted after March 1 will make small plants for bedding purposes. The best stock for late May and early June planting should be in four inch pots by April, that they may be well enough established by the middle of May to begin to flower and should have at that time three or four good branches that a succession of bloom is assured.

WINTER MANAGEMENT OF THE BROOD MARE

If the mare is to foal before grass comes or the weather has turned warm she should have special care, writes an Illinois farmer in the Iowa Homestead. Above all, she should have plenty of succulent feed. For this reason I do not think it best to feed a large amount of corn. Oats and bran are better, and clover or alfalfa hay is much more satisfactory than timothy or red top. She must not be allowed to become constipated, and the succulent feeds tend to keep her bowels open and prepare her for motherhood. While she should have plenty of exercise, she should be handled very carefully, for if she is overworked she is very apt to Percheron breeders are greatly elated over the splendid showing this breed of horses made at the last International Live Stock exposition at Chicago. Keen interest was manifested in this breed of drafters, which is well distributed in many states. lose her colt. She should be kept off of slippery ground or the ice. A mare that is heavy with foal cannot handle herself very quickly, and a slip on the ice or ground may cause serious results. She should also be kept out of deep mud and should never be worked when the ground is soft or muddy.

It will be a good plan to keep her in a box stall at night. A stall on the south side of the barn where it is warm will be necessary if she is to foal in cold weather. Here she should have a solid floor on which is a good bedding. If the day happens to be warm and pleasant she may be allowed to run in a lot by herself. No hogs, vicious cows or kicking, pawing mules should be allowed in her inclosure.

She should have free access to pure water all the time and should never be allowed to run to icy or miry ponds to drink. Avoid all dangers for the brood mare, and she will pay well for it in the first class colt that she produces.

The flock must be watched fully during the cold months that a profitable crop of wool can be saved.

The loss of a few sheep lambs will quickly knock off profits.

Remember that when you feeding for the lamb crop are also feeding for wool. Well fed, well nourished will shear a heavy fleece.

Sheep need salt in winter well as in summer.

HOW PURE BREDS F

Where the Profit in Handling greed Hogs Comes In.

The fact of the matter is that of us are afraid of the pure bred hogs, says E. W. Gage in the Farm Fireside. Here is the way we to look at the matter. The pack pay just as much for one hog other, provided he has the weight.

That is a fact, but there is money, all things considered, pure breed of hogs if bred, as much for vigor, vitality and prolificacy.

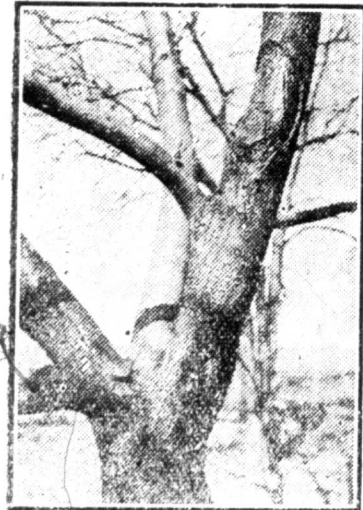

Within a year the University of Iowa priced a pure bred sow pig to a would be buyer for $125 price seemed bigger than a mare to the average of the state and the sale was not made. The pig of the sow was carrying time she was priced was later under six months of age for an average of $215.

He was supplied a young sow for $25. His neighbor threw up their hands—that day the talk of the town for the next weeks. The sow's first litter this man $110, while the second sold at about $100.

Some Sentence!

The champion speller of congress has on tap a great assortment of stories dealing with words and spelling.

One of his linguistic feats is to reel off a sentence of twenty-six words, each word beginning with the successive letters of the alphabet, like this:

"A boy cannot dig easily for gold; hence, if just keeping lead melted needs oxygen put quicksilver, rapidly saturated, timidly under vitriol, when xebecs yeap zeolites."

STEERS FOR FEEDING.

Points to Observe When Selecting Animals For the Feed Lot.

When selecting steers for the feed lot about the first thing I do is to look at the eye. It should be large, full and bright, writes H. W. Swope in the American Agriculturist. Judging from what I have heard said upon the institute platform and from my own experience, I want my feeding steers to have very much such an eye as the dairyman wants in his well bred and successful dairy cow.

The steer's back must be broad, with ribs well sprung, and hams well carried down to the hocks. If he is not in the best of condition this fullness of ham will not show up very prominently, but I can tell very quickly from the general makeup of the animal whether or not he will make such a ham as I have described. If he will not, then I let some one else experiment with his feeding. Such a steer, while he may prove better all around than his condition indicates, would be a little risky at present prices, and when feedstuffs are as high as they are today. I also want a steer to stand square on his feet so that he can easily carry his weight when he is fattened up ready for market.

Prepare For Next Summer.

This is a good time to be thinking about the silo as a means of taking care of next year's feed. It will pay to get the literature of the various silo concerns. This will not only set forth detailed descriptions of the various silos made, but will contain much authentic silo information. It will be a good plan also to visit those neighbors who have silos and find out what they think of silage as a feed, how their cows are doing this winter as compared with last, when no silage was fed, and also how they like the particular silo they have. Do not confine your silo investigation to one farm, either. Visit all the farms you can conveniently. You will then get the different viewpoints and be in better position to draw satisfactory conclusions for yourself.—Kansas Farmer.

Duroc-Jersey hogs are large bone and are not liable to disease. They develop rapidly and are extraordinarily good producers. The average litter from sows is about eight pigs each, the older sow giving the better results and producing stronger and healthier offspring. The sows are good mothers and are good rangers for the hard type of hog. They can be made to weigh 250 pounds at ten months of age. The sow shown is a pure blood Duroc-Jersey.

October pigs mature through winter very well if fed in this way they do not feel the effects of the so much and get plenty of exercise help develop bone and constitute vigor. It is one way to solve the problem of feeding winter pigs—those coming late in the fall.

Young sows that are to be kept breeders are matured well on such ration. They learn the ways of feeder, and if given considerable liberty become tame and prove to be docile mothers. Bred so that they grow when nearing twelve months age they are always matured sufficiently to farrow well and if of right stock produce large litters of pigs. Silage fed hogs are the equal of any other kind, and if allowed freedom while they are young and given a ration well supplied with vitamin they seldom are cross at farrowing time, seldom eat their own food and can more readily be handled by the caretaker.

Profits on Horses.

The department of agriculture has been studying the results of horse breeding in the United States, based on reports of 10,000 breeders, and finds that there is a profit of about per cent in a three-year colt above the cost of raising. The net cost producing and raising a colt to age of three years, allowing for work done, averages $96.54, while the selling price averages $136.17. The lead cost is feeding, 54 per cent; cost of care and shelter, 18 per cent, while the remainder is covered by break to halter, for veterinary service and for sundry items.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

How the Milkmaids of Holland Carry Heavy Loads.

ADVANTAGES OF A YOKE.

Two Pails Are More Easily Borne Than One When Balanced on the Shoulders.

Things of Interest to Little People. Puzzles and Games.

To carry two pails of milk or water is easier than to carry one if you know how and have a yoke such as the girl in the picture has balanced on her shoulder. Every boy who has ever carried water from the well in a bucket knows it is a pretty hard job,

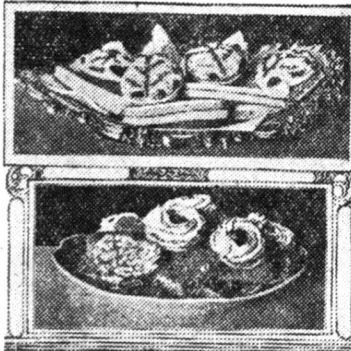

LENTEN SANDWICHES.

How to Prepare Two Dainty and Nour- ishing Foods For Luncheon or Tea.

With Lent coming on apace, the question of suitable and attractive food in which meat is no factor begins to occupy the mind of the housewife. For luncheon or the small informal Lenten tea the novel sandwiches in which these requirements are met will be appreciated. Recipes are given here for two dainty sandwiches.

To make sardine or anchovy sand- wiches with canapes, says the Boston Cooking School Magazine, pound the flesh of the fish in a wooden bowl until smooth; if convenient add the sifted yolks of two or more hard cooked eggs and again pound until smooth; season with paprika, salt if necessary, and press through a sieve; add chopped pi- mentos and truffles. Have ready one- fourth the measure of rich cream; beat this stiff and fold into the fish mix- ture; add salt and pepper as needed and use as a sandwich filling. Garnish the plate of sandwiches with three or four canapes or open sandwiches. For these toast the halves of crackers. When cold spread with the fish mix- ture, rounding it slightly to dome shape; make smooth with a silver knife and draw the knife through the center of the surface to make a de- sign; fill this with chopped truffles and set a few bits of pimento on the edge.

To prepare cream cheese sandwiches with canapes, mash Neuchatel or Phil- adelphia cream cheese to a smooth paste and fold into it enough stiff beat- en cream to make a mixture that will flow easily through a pastry bag and tube. Spread entire wheat bread made with whole fliberts with creamed but- ter and cheese; set one or two preserv- ed strawberries or bar le duc on the cheese and cover with a second piece of bread spread lightly with butter and the cheese mixture. Garnish the plate of sandwiches with three or four open sandwiches. To make these, pipe a ring of the cheese mixture on toast- ed halves of crackers and set a straw- berry or currant in the center and at each side.

FOR THE COOK.

Two Dainty Ways of Serving Well Known Foods.

VITALITY REGAINED KIDNEYS CURED

Health Restored By
"Fruit-a-tives"

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 26th. 1913.
"About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My kidneys and liver were not doing their work, and I became all run-down. I felt the need of some good remedy, and having seen "Fruit-a-tives" advertised, I decided to try them.

Their effect, I found more than satisfactory. Their action was mild and the results all that could have been expected.

My liver and kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes, and I regained my old time vitality. Today, I am as well as ever, the best health I have ever enjoyed, and I unhesitatingly give you this testimonial for publication if you wish."

B. A. KELLY.

In hundreds of letters received by the Fruit-a-tives Company, the same expres- sion is used "Fruit-a-tives is the best kidney remedy in the world". At any rate, these tablets have proved the best to the hundreds of men and women who have been cured by taking them. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

WHERE ONE MAY USE JAPANESE CRASH.

Japanese toweling, or coolie cloth, as it is called, has been exploited quite a little of late, but new ways of employ- ing it in decoration are continually be- ing found. In fact, there seems to be no limit to its possibilities.

Anything prettier than portieres of this fabric can hardly be imagined. Curtains and bedspreads to match are sold in the oriental shops, but any in- genious girl can easily make these and many other pretty things for her room.

Cushions for the window seat, couch covers, dresser and table runners, laundry bags, bookshelf curtains—these are but a few of the ways in which she may employ the Japanese toweling.

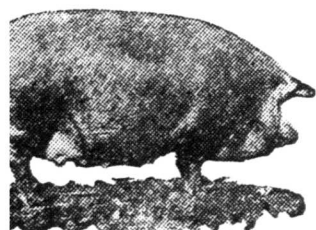

One clever woman applied this ma- terial very happily in the decorating of her nursery. She covered the walls with plain gray burlap and used a strip of the Japanese toweling in stone blue and white as a frieze. The blue- birds proved to be veritable "bluebirds of happiness" to the little fellow who toddled about there all day. The same baby had bibs made from the "bunny" pattern, and a big bag covered with storks held his toys.

As to its use in the dining room—the Japanese toweling table sets are be- coming more and more popular. The designs are fadeless, and successive launderings only serve to soften the texture. The wistaria, cherry blossom and pine needle patterns are most ef- fective.

Taking it all in all, you will hardly find a fabric so adaptable to a truly decorative scheme as Japanese towel- ing.

and he usually sticks one arm out to help balance the loaded side. When he has two buckets the job is easier, if they are not too heavy. The weight of one offsets that of the other, and he is able to walk erect, but finds it difficult to prevent the pails knocking against his legs. The girl in the picture is a milkmaid and she lives in Holland, or the Netherlands, which is a famous dairy country. You notice that she has a wooden yoke placed at the back of her neck and resting on her shoulders. On each end of the yoke she suspends two great pails of milk and is able to carry them with ease. The weight is balanced on the shoulders, which she relieves somewhat with her hands. But one of the pails is shown, space not permitting the other to appear in the picture. Those who have to carry water any distance might use this scheme to lighten themselves.

Neat and Very Convenient.

The woman who likes dainty, attractive table service will appreciate the newest invention for serving eggs and toast at the first meal of the day.

The egg rack pictured is of bright nickel ware, and the six egg cups, as well as the salt bowl, are of blue ware not unlike the old "willow patterns." Attached to the rack is a glass dish to hold toast. The present high cost of eggs brings them into the luxury class, and consequently they require a fitting setting. (No attempt at a pun intended.)

EGG SERVICE AND TOAST RACK.

Trust Thrusts.

If trusts are not dissolving they are at least dissimulating.—Chicago News.

Unscrambling is now proceeding to the tune of "Everybody's Doing It."—New York Tribune.

Is the "radium ring" to take the place of the "octopus" in the trust vocabulary?—New York World.

The price of eggs has risen to a point where the Morgan firm has been driven to try whether the process of unscrambling may not after all be practicable.—New York Post.

A delicious prune pudding can be made in the following way: Get the large California prunes; soak them overnight; in the morning cook them in very little water for about five minutes so that they can be stoned easily.

Chop one cupful of suet very fine, add a cupful of molasses, a teaspoonful of mixed spice, one of salt, a cupful of milk and three and a half cupfuls of flour, into which has been sifted one teaspoonful of baking soda. Cut the prunes in small pieces and pour all together, transferring the ingredients into a buttered mold, filling it about three-quarters full. Set in a pot of boiling water and let it boil uninterruptedly for four hours. Whatever is left of the pudding can be served again if cut in slices and fried brown in butter.

Veal cutlets when properly broiled are very much better than when fried in the usual manner. Season well two pounds of the meat and half an hour before serving broil quickly and thoroughly. A pan with a tightly fitted cover should be in readiness in the oven, into which a cupful of hot water and a piece of butter about the size of an egg should be poured. Lay the cutlets in this and cover up closely so that they will remain very hot until carried to the table.

The Way to Launder Curtains.

When doing up fine curtains the weight alone of the heavy work often tears the curtain.

To avoid this take cheesecloth that has been shrunk or old sheets sewed together, on which carefully baste the curtains.

After shaking out the dust soak in cold water. Put in suds and boil. Gently lift up and down in the water.

Rinse in several waters, the last slightly blued for white curtains or stained with coffee for ceru.

Put through the wringer; never wring by hand. Set up the stretcher and after doubling your curtain to find the center commence to pin on from center to outside.

Keep the curtains constantly wet while pinning on or they may tear. Four curtains may be pinned on at once, so keeping all pairs precisely the same size and shape for bay or double window.

A little starch may be added to the last rinsing water if desired.

Banishing Odors.

Very often when the dining room is near the kitchen the odor of cooking becomes unpleasant. By pouring a few drops of oil of lavender into a glass of very hot water the air of the room is purified almost instantly. This is also useful in a sickroom. If the lavender is prepared just before dinner is ready to be served the room will be filled with a faint but very acceptable odor of freshness.

Carrot Pudding.

One cupful of grated carrots, one cupful of grated potatoes, one cupful of sugar, one cupful of flour, one-half cupful of raisins and currants mixed, two teaspoonfuls of all kinds of spice mixed, one teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of salt. Mix all together and steam for three hours. Grease a small pail and put the dough in it. Set the pail in a kettle of boiling waer, keeping the water well up near the top of the pail. Cover kettle over so all the steam may be kept in as much as possible.

banishings only serve to soften the texture. The wistaria, cherry blossom and pine needle patterns are most effective.

Taking it all in all, you will hardly find a fabric so adaptable to a truly decorative scheme as Japanese towel- ing.

THE POTATO HABIT.

Now There's a Shortage in the Popular Tuber.

And now word comes that there is a potato shortage of 92,000,000 bushels, and it would seem as if we are to be deprived of still another cheap and nourishing staple.

But it may be sincerely said that the average American table has seen the potato too often and in too many unattractive forms. "Fried potatoes" is an omnipresent Americanism, which is to blame for much of our national dyspepsia.

Potatoes by chemical analysis show (boiled):

Protein	2.5
Carbohydrate	29.9
Fat1
Water	75.5

This, of course, puts them into the "starchy" class, along with white bread, rice, macaroni, hominy and many of the cereals. It is true that many times we have committed the sin of having "three starches" at the same meal. Investigators insist that women eat too many starchy foods. When combined with a quantity of the usual white bread, it is true that the average meal is too high in starch value and still more true it is that our usual manner of peeling the potato before using robs it of its chief value—that of its mineral salt. Baked potatoes are the best and most economical way of serving the tuber.

Even if there is a potato shortage its place can be taken by more extensive use of rice as a "vegetable" and by using hominy, spaghetti and parsnips, which nearly duplicate its qualities, in its place.

Breton Pigs.

The Breton pig is not fat and indolent like ours. He is as lean and fiery as a wolf and twice a wolf's size. All over Brittany you see him, swaggering up and down the white roads in search of roots, berries, frogs, anything—for he must forage for himself—his master never feeds him. Step out of his way or he will snarl and leap at you.

These tickets are good for either night. A great deal of time and hard work is required in the getting into shape of a racing team, and the financial end of it also means hard work, but the way the citizens are responding by the buying of tickets will make it much easier. The expense of taking a team to Lindsay this year will be larger than usual, but the firemen hope, with the support of the citizens, to accomplish it all right.

Killed Near Ernesttown.

A terrible accident occurred at Sharpe's grade near Ernesttown on Sunday afternoon when a lad by the name of "William" White, aged 17 years, who belongs to the Marchmont Home at Belleville, but was employed by a farmer named Withers, was killed instantly while walking along the railroad track. The lad had been attending Union Sunday school at Ernesttown and after leaving the school at four o'clock he started to walk home. When about Sharpe's grade, eighteen miles from Kingston, he was caught between an express train going west and another train going east. The unfortunate lad stepped from in front of one into the other, as a huge snow bank was between the tracks. He was struck by the west bound express, and went between its wheels, being mangled beyond recognition. One arm and a leg cut off. The Engineer of the express that struck the lad brought the train to a standstill, after which the remains were picked up, placed on board the express, and hustled with all speed to Napanee. Coroner Dr. Cowan held an inquest on Monday evening and the verdict reached was "accidental death." The train crew were exonerated from all blame.

Ladies' Musical Club.

The second evening recital of the Musical Club for this season will be held in the Town Hall on this Friday evening (to-night) March 13th. The club has secured Mr. Edwin Gray, pianist, Mr. Milton Blanksteen, violinist and Mr. Roy Webster, cellist, of Toronto, all of whom we spoke of at some length in the last week's paper. Miss Margaret Hughes, soprano, of Belleville, will contribute two groups of songs. This is the last open meeting the club will give this year and the ladies wish to assure their friends that a most interesting programme will be presented and varied enough to please everyone. Programme at 8.15 sharp. This recital is free to members of the club only, non-members 25 cents.

Rhode Island Reds.

Mr. G. B. Curran made a splendid record with his single comb Rhode Island Reds at Poultry Exhibitions the past winter. Mr. Curran shipped last week an exhibition cockerel to Saskatchewan, and also one to St. Catharines. At Belleville Poultry Show Mr. Curran's Reds won 1st cock, 1st hen, 2nd and 3rd cockerels 3rd pullet. At Napanee 2nd cock, 3rd hen 3rd, 4th and 5th cockerels, and 4th pullet. At Smith's Falls in a class of 98 Reds he won 1st cock, 3rd hen, 2nd cockerel and 3rd pullet. At Kingston he won 3rd cock, and 3rd cockerel in a class of 100 Reds. These winnings were made at four different shows under four different judges, and his birds were in the money at every show something no other exhibitor can boast who exhibited at all four shows. Mr. Curran has orders for hatching eggs from Saskatchewan, New Brunswick and many points in Ontario. Farmers who wish to get into a good laying strain of Reds should look up Mr. Curran's advt. in this issue.

YOU CAN'T EARN MONEY WHEN YOU'RE LAID UP.

There are a lot of people in this town who cannot afford to be sick. Perhaps none of you feel that you can, but certainly some of you can't, for as you are sick, your wages stop and debts begin to pile up. The sensible thing for you to do, as soon as you feel run-down and worn out, no matter what the cause, is to take something just as quick as you can to build up strength and health. Make yourself more comfortable and provide against serious sickness.

We don't believe there is any other medicine made that will do as much towards saving your health and thus helping you save your money as Rexall Olive Emulsion. It is a medicine that gets right at the trouble and relieves it by toning the nerves, enriching the blood, and giving new strength and health to the whole body. It doesn't do this by means of alcohol or habit-forming drugs, because it contains none. Its strength and health-giving power is due to pure Olive Oil and the Hypophosphites, long endorsed by successful physicians, the one for its food value, the other for its tonic value. Here, for the first time, they are combined, and the result is a real nerve, blood and body-building medicine—a real strengthener that we are proud to tell you about. You don't need to hesitate in using it, because if it doesn't do all we say it will and satisfy you in every way, it will cost you nothing. If it doesn't make you strong and well again, come back and get your money. It will be given to you without word or question. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00. Wallace's Drug Store, Limited.

1-2 Tons Linoleum.

Six months ago we placed our order with one of the largest manufacturers in the Old Country for 2½ tons of 2 to 3 wide Linoleum. They arrived this week and are now opened up. This is one of the largest shipments of linoleum that ever came to the town of Napanee. But we are going to sell them AND DO IT QUICK. Dozens of tons that come from, in the newest colors, at selling out prices.

The qualities are those good old Scotch kind that wears for years.
